News from the School director

Dear All,

While we are waiting for the accreditation visit and also a long-term plan to solve the problems with the skimmelsvampinfektion, it is reassuring that the horse mounted police will be protecting us. Two out of the current eight policehorses were in function at Frederiksberg Campus. Perhaps we could find a couple of boxes where the police could saddle up, rather than be referred to a busy road?

The accreditation report has now been published and can easily be accessed on the intranet. (Go directly there now). And it is recommended that everyone looks in the extensive self-assessment text, and, not least, is pleased with Poul Hyttels fine watercolor, which adorns the front and back of the report.

Happy Reading

News from IVH management

Through January and February, the financial staff at the IVH secretariat has worked very hard to finalise the 2019 accounts and draft the section budgets for 2020.

At the overall level, the Department is in very good shape and the 2019 accounts showed a surplus of approx. 2 mill DKK. At section level, some sections came out with a surplus while others made a deficit.

It is common that income and expenditure fluctuate over the years. The differences in the financial challenges at the various sections are discussed and handled by in the leader group. Actions are taken to achieve financial balance in all sections.

Arm's- length

The media and society in general have shown great interest in the independency of our researchers and their research. A focal point has been how independent are the researchers and how reliable are their results if influenced by other stakeholders? This became very obvious in the "Beef report" from Aarhus University where the objectivity of the report was questioned and accused of being influenced by political staff from the Danish Agriculture and Food Council. Such allegations can be very serious, and we need to raise awareness of the problem.

To that effect, a working group at IVH has developed the guidelines "Co-operation with business and public authorities". The folder can be found on the intranet.

The Performance and Development Review (PDR/MUS) has started and this is an opportunity to talk about your wellbeing at work. We know that most of you feel safe and comfortable in your working environment, but we also know that some do not. It should be clear that bullying and harassment are not accepted at IVH. The IVH guidelines for handling of offensive behaviour is now available at the intranet.
